What is EAP?

Employers recognize that personal problems can interfere with an employee's work and peace of mind. From time to time, each of us can use some assistance coping with life's problems. An Employee Assistance Program is a short-term counseling service, provided to you by your employer, which will assist in identifying issues that may be interfering with your job or personal life and help you resolve them.

Your EAP Can Help With

- Marital/relationship issues
- Difficulties with friends or co-workers
- Depression and anxiety
- Concerns regarding children and adolescents
- Elder care issues
- Stress management
- Substance abuse (alcohol and other drugs)
- Financial or legal referrals
- Personal growth and development
- Other personal concerns

Scope and Cost of Services

EAP services are provided to you and your dependents by your employer at no cost to you. Services include assessment, counseling and telephone consultations. If further assistance is required, a referral to an appropriate professional will be made. Fees for additional services may be covered in part by your medical insurance.

EAP Counseling is Confidential

Brief, confidential records are kept to assist in our counseling and referral. Records are stored at our offices and are not made part of your personnel, human resources, or company medical files. EAP will not disclose information to your employer about your participation in EAP without your specific written consent.
