

Captions: Meet the residents, 2018.

My name is Janira Navarro Sanchez, MD and I was born in Peru. But I was raised in Venezuela. And I did my medical school there also. And I wanted to do my residency in Pathology in the United States. And well I got here in Hawaii. It's my first time here I am very excited to learn about pathology and the diagnostic area of medicine.

My name is Ala Alkofahi, MD. I came from Jordan. I graduated from Jordan University of Science and Technology. I came here to start my residency in Internal Medicine. I am looking to help patients get well the patients, the family of the patients, during my residency. And after residency I'm looking to pursue my career in Cardiology as a Fellowship in the future.

Hi, my name is Ammaar El Sergany, MD, and I am joining the Cardiovascular Medicine Fellowship Program I'm very excited about that and I always wanted to do it so it's great to be here. So you have been a doctor for a while now? Yes, about 7 years, actually. I finished residency and went and worked as a hospitalist for four years, and now I am finally living the dream and finishing a cardiovascular fellowship. I went to Ross Medical School in the Caribbean and did my residency in New York and Brooklyn, which was a great experience as well. So it's taken me all around and now down here in Hawai'i, I don't think I am going to go anywhere after that.